

NCSEA PRESENTS

energy choices NOW ROADSHOW

The North Carolina Sustainable Energy Association (NCSEA) and its partners are bringing the “Energy Choices Now” Roadshow to Elizabeth City 3-5 p.m. Tuesday, May 8. The event will be at the College of Albemarle, Foreman Technology Center, 1208 N. Road St., Elizabeth City

Space is limited! Save your spot today!

WHAT:

- NCSEA’s Executive Director Ivan Urlaub, the foremost Southeast expert on clean energy, will discuss the next steps to an affordable energy future for all of North Carolina
- NCSEA’s Director of Government Affairs & Registered Lobbyist Julie Robinson will provide tips on how to effectively communicate and educate state decision makers
- You will also be able to participate in exciting discussions about the clean energy laws and regulations that affect your daily life
- Plus, you will be able to enjoy great networking opportunities

WHY:

Electricity is the backbone of our society. It powers our homes, our schools, our businesses, our cities and our churches. By working together in recent years, we’ve made a lot of progress in expanding our state’s clean energy economy, creating jobs, increasing renewable energy projects and becoming more energy efficient. If we’re going to make even more progress during this year’s legislative session, which begins in May, we need your involvement and engagement to build more support. Now is the time to make this happen!
